So far in FY2010, there have been three disaster declarations and/or administrative orders issued by the Governor:
- Kodiak Island Flood - Pelican Water System Failure - Steward Storm Surge
Between the three, the Disaster Relief Fund is over-obligated by approximately $600,000. This request of $5,000,000 will replenish the fund in order to be prepared for the next disaster that takes place.
Historically, each spring there are spring floods and other weather related occurrences such as storms that require the use of the Disaster Relief Fund. Having the funds available when disasters do occur allows the state to provide immediate assistance to the citizens of Alaska.
If the funds are not utilized this fiscal year, they will remain in the fund for the next disaster that takes place.
